American Baptist Churches of Nebraska 2007 Annual Convention Family Reunion

*"Now to Him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine . . . to Him be glory . . .
for ever and ever! Amen."
Ephesians 3:20-21 (NIV)*

September 21-23, 2007
Sandhills Convention Center
North Platte, Nebraska

This Opportunity is for YOU! Nebraska Baptists Gather in North Platte For 140th Anniversary

The 140th Anniversary gathering of Nebraska Baptists will take place at the Sandhills Convention Center in North Platte, Sept. 21-23, 2007.

From Region President Darren Stroh: "This is a Family Reunion. Yes, it's good to be in Nebraska where a helping hand is always an arm's length away, but family...well, it's just different. It's better. Being with like-minded people. Praying with people who walk a similar faith journey. Eating and laughing around the table and checking up on what the Heavenly Father is up to in their neck of the woods. It's like...well, a family reunion. And what's even greater about the family of Believers I find myself in is that I can be family even if there are subtle differences between me and my brothers and sisters. It's good to get together. It's good to encourage each other face to face. It's good to let the Holy Spirit encourage us as kindling to a stack of wood for together we are stronger...because we're family.

"The convention team has worked very hard this year to be creative and encouraging—to give the Holy Spirit every possible opportunity to build up each who attend. I encourage you to make plans to come. Let's make this a family reunion to remember—a family reunion that shows face by face that God is not in retreat. And if you are worried that it'll just be a bunch of boring meetings, consider the words of Paul, 'Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever. Amen.'"

This is your invitation to come and join in this wonderful, renewing, refueling time!

From the Executive Minister Susan Gillies

Mattie was a Democrat

Mattie E. Rumery passed away July 22, 2007, after living 101 years. She was a significant part of the life of the Nebraska Baptist State Convention. She was the last living graduate of Grand Island College. The history and records of the college now reside with the University of Sioux Falls. In 1991 she was honored as the woman who had been most influential in the history of the American Baptist Women in Nebraska.

Mattie was a classic “encourager.” She was certainly a blessing to me. I believe all Christians are called to be encouragers but only a limited number do it really, really well.

When I drove to North Platte for the Memorial Service, I was stunned to learn that Mattie was a Democrat. How could that be? Her son-in-law was Bob Phares—Mr. Republican, former mayor of North Platte, nearly governor of NE, now on the Board of Regents. (Of course his biggest claim to fame is that he is a former ABC/NE President!)

Finding out that Mattie was a Democrat was great. Because I love it when stereotypes are blown apart.

It is all too easy to think that everyone looks at life the way I do. It’s easy to think that folks who are similar to me in faith may be similar to me in politics. The truth is, it’s just not so. Our society has become obsessed with putting people in pigeon holes. And it’s not very helpful.

Perhaps we need to think about the way we categorize people when we meet them. Do we base our attitude about someone on truth or hearsay? Do we judge people by length of hair, color of skin, clothing, or political affiliation? Do we assume that because someone has a “conservative” position on one issue, they will match some stereotypical definition of conservative on all issues? Do we assume the same of someone with a “liberal” position? Or a middle-ground position?

Or, with each person we meet, do we look to find Jesus in them? Do we understand each person is a unique child of God?

I did find out that Mattie switched her registration in order to vote for Bob in the primary when he ran for governor. I asked him if she changed it back afterwards and he said, “Probably.” Mattie wasn’t rigid in her party affiliation. She often asked Bob for advice about candidates.

So what do we learn from this “encourager” Christian who defied certain stereotypes? Mattie reminds me to try to be more like Jesus. Her life encourages me to be true to my faith, careful in my politics, thoughtful in all things, gentle and humorous in my relationships and filled with joy. And to encourage others to do likewise.

Thank you, God, for Mattie.

From the Associate Executive Minister Steve Bills

140 Years of “Mission Mindedness”

As I sat around the tables in the basement of the First Baptist Church in Deadwood, South Dakota I was encouraged to hear Nebraska Baptists share stories about the many and varied ministries that were being done in their home churches this summer. Vacation Bible schools, food pantries, disaster relief trips and youth projects seemed to be common experiences. Not only were these men and women willing to take vacation time to come to minister in the Black Hills at their own expense, but they were looking forward to plugging back in back home when the week was over.

The Sturgis Aid Station ministry is the high profile outreach that gets more than its share of publicity, but the day-in and day-out routine faithfulness of our congregations is a great encouragement to us all.

Nebraska Baptists have always been about mission and ministry. Preparing for the 140th anniversary of the Nebraska Baptist State Convention has given us opportunity to review materials in our archives that chronicle the missionary expansion across the state. I get exhausted just reading about the work they did under the conditions in which they lived!

But things really have not changed much in 140 years. Our churches and members are still burdened for reaching their neighbors and for doing their part in fulfilling the great commandment and the great commission. Loving our neighbor as ourselves and preaching the gospel and making disciples is still the heartbeat that drives most of what we do as a family.

As mission gets farther from our homes it becomes less likely that we will be able to directly participate in it personally.

Most of our 5,600 members will never come to the Black Hills to serve on the ABC Emergency Services staff during Sturgis. Even fewer of us will accompany a team to the gulf coast for a disaster relief mission. Going overseas with an ABC International Ministries missionary project will be the privilege of even fewer of us. But we are all participants in these labors of love as members of the family.

Because of our support of mission through the ABC we have young people who go to camp and dedicate their lives to Christian service. Because of our support of mission through the ABC we have colleges and seminaries that prepare them for life and ministry. Because of our support of mission through the ABC we have home and foreign mission boards that form partnerships with our sisters and brothers throughout the world with whom we can work. Neighborhood centers, new church plants, orphanages, evangelism crusades, training for indigenous pastors and church leaders, campus ministry . . . the list goes on. All sorts of ministry for which we are all responsible and to which we all contribute — even though few of us will ever actually have the chance to see the work done firsthand.

Make the effort to participate in a mission trip or project like the Sturgis mission or the trip to Lodge Grass this October. Attend a missions conference like the one in Kansas City this November. Learn about the opportunities that exist for service in your own congregation. Visit the web sites to learn more about all that you are doing (www.nationalministries.org; www.internationalministries.org). You are part of a rich missional heritage going back 140 years.

Nola's Take Five . . .

Ideas from Nola Oberhelman
ABC/NE Christian Education Consultant

Take five methods for student retelling of stories:

1. conduct interviews of the characters
2. put on a puppet show
3. present plays wearing paperbag masks
4. fold drawing paper into accordion books and draw scenes on each section or page
5. tell the story in "going to Jerusalem" style, the first student begins, the next repeats and adds his sentence, etc.

Whatever method, retelling re-enforces learning.

BIBLE STUDY ON PERSONAL RENEWAL: A TIME FOR EMPTYING AND FILLING

Goal: Personal Renewal

Method: The Shakers were known for their vigorous dancing. In one dance they extended their hands with their palms down the first half of the dance to empty themselves of the negative thoughts, emotions, and attitudes that slither in unnoticed. In the second half of the dance they held their hands palms up to be filled with exciting new gifts from God. We will use their method as the approach to our Bible study.

Content: The Actual Words of Jesus, Especially a Few of His 333 Questions recorded in the Gospels. The first half of our time together we will apply some of his questions so we can empty ourselves of stress, brooding, anxiety, fear, comparison, criticism, or anger. The last half of our shared time we will consider his questions and actions involving peace, humility, spontaneity, surprise, healing, justice, love, and the courage to take new initiatives so we will be open to being filled spiritually. We will also do a study of Jesus' method of asking questions so we can continue to apply that approach to ours and others' lives.

Results: We invite you as Philip did Nathanael to "Come and see."

History Headlines

If you could describe what's been happening in your church in just a few lines, what would you write? In the 1870 reports from churches, we read these comments:

—From Independence: "A promising revival is in progress, and sinners are being brought to Christ."

—From Camp Creek, Cass County: "Desire to record God's goodness in spreading for the church a table in the wilderness. Are destitute of regular preaching, but mean to wait and watch until break of day."

—From Lincoln: "Have raised one thousand three hundred dollars among their members towards building, and have under contract a house of worship to cost four thousand dollars or more."

—From Tecumseh: "Ask for prayer, that unity may prevail, and souls be saved."

—From Prairie Union: "Are realizing the truth of the Master's word—'In the world ye shall have tribulation,' but place their trust in Him who has said, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.'"

—From Brownville: "Have an excellent Sabbath school, in fine working order."

—From Harmony: "Have most of the year been in a cold, barren state, having no stated meetings, and only occasional preaching by visiting brethren. Elder Lowe is now making a special effort with and for them, and with encouraging prospects. Already many sinners are inquiring the way of salvation."

—From Otoe: "No cheering news to communicate, but are still holding fast to the truth as it is in Jesus, and are determined to persevere in following Him."

—From Ashland: "Have a flourishing Sabbath school, upon which they have expended one hundred dollars during the past year."

Dear Friends,

Fall is my favorite season at Moses Merrill. I think you'd like it too. [Of course I like it because deep in the woods the mice are running around trying to get ready for winter and they're easier for me to catch!]

We have two sets of deer twins this year and one set of triplets. I haven't counted all the turkey babies.

More and more people are discovering the joys of RV camping in our peaceful valley. Usage is up and people are having a great time.

When was the last time you took your family or some friends on a nice all day picnic? Fall is a great time! Just stop by the Visitors' Center so we know you're here. I frequently rest under the bench on the porch. Just say "Hi," I'll be glad to see you.

Nebraska Baptists Have a Vision for Moses Merrill

Nebraska Baptists continue to build on the vision for a "Center for Christian Growth." That was the term used when the land was purchased for the current Moses Merrill Camp & Conference Center.

The Building Bridges Campaign, begun several years ago, has produced Friendship Chapel, Smith Amphitheatre, the Prayer Walk, Ward Conference Center, and Calvary Lodge. "I believe we've been faithful to the vision cast when the Fullerton site was purchased and later renewed when the Linwood site was obtained," stated Executive Minister Susan Gillies, "People of all ages, having found here a deeper relationship with God, affirm that this is truly holy ground."

WHAT'S NEXT? The final part of the Building Bridges Campaign is an Activity Pavilion or Building. This project is temporarily on hold while we deal with some infrastructure issues. A major re-working of the camp sewer lines is required by the state of Nebraska. According to Camp Director Clarence Reiss, "I am confident we'll be able to build an appropriate sewer system. The many friends of Camp Merrill will show their generosity again as they have in the past. Baptists in Nebraska are committed to this ministry and I'm grateful to be part of it."

So . . . stay tuned!

Work Teams . . .

- good for local church team building
- good for men's & women's groups
- good for young adult mission projects
- good for the ministry at Moses Merrill

What is needed?

All kinds of skills—painting, repair, gardening & tree trimming, hauling.

Fall 07 specific needs for remodeling Parkgrove Lodge

What is required?

You'll need a willing heart. You'll also need to do some advance planning and let camp know ahead of time that you are willing to come and help. Heavy fall bookings make some weekends impossible for work crews. [What a great problem to have! -ed.]

From the Associate Executive Minister Dave Lundholm

A Denominational Family

Over the last few years I have had conversations with people from other denominations or independent traditions who want to pastor American Baptist churches. Some of those folks have become wonderful additions to the family. My colleague, Steve Bills, came from an independent tradition. He was attracted to FBC, Omaha, because of its program. It was after he got here that he discovered the richness of being part of the ABC family. He is now deeply involved not just at a regional level but also nationally with the Ministers Council Senate. This family adopted him and he adopted it.

At other times, the person with whom I've talked has seemed more interested in just "a job." The conversations sometimes go like this:

Dave: "It's great that you want to become part of the American Baptist family. We are a denomination that welcomes people from other traditions. Many of our finest pastors have come from other denominations and have found a home in the ABC-USA. There are many advantages to being an American Baptist in Nebraska. There is the Carpenter fund scholarship that provides excellent events for continuing education. There is Moses Merrill Camp and Conference Center that provides a special space where people can slow down enough to experience God. We have an excellent pastoral retirement plan in the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board."

"I will be happy to help you to work through the process to have your ordination recognized by the ABC."
"So tell me, why do you want to become an American Baptist?"

Pastor: "Well I really don't want to become an American Baptist. I just want to pastor one of your churches. I am happy with the network of people I already know, I am familiar with the resources from the group I'm already a part of."

Dave: "If you are happy where you are at, I don't see why you want to pastor an ABC church. Wouldn't it be better for you to continue to serve your present denomination? If you want to become an American Baptist I will be happy to work with you to help you become one but if you don't, then I can't support your candidacy for an ABC church."

And just like the rich young ruler, they turn and go away.

The reason pastors like that want to be in an American Baptist Church is that they want a job. And if they should be called to the position they will expect the church to change to fit them rather than being adaptable to the needs of the church. The moral is that when you are looking for a pastor, it is important to discern those who are looking for work from those who are seeking to serve.

"If you want to cook southern fried chicken, don't try to get a job at a pizza parlor."-- Dave Lundholm

Aug 26 was a fun and emotional day for the kids of FBC. It was Promotion Sunday, a baptismal service saw eight of our kids walk through the "waters of baptism" and the kids were in charge of the morning worship service. Plans are underway for the beginning of our "Electric Wednesday Program" which will kickoff on Sept 12.

The weekend was completed with the men returning to lead the Sunday worship service. The August "Senior Play Day" was held on the Aug 15 at Mahoney State Park, and a side trip to Holy Family Shrine at Gretna. The youth who went on the Kansas City mission trip led the Aug. 26 service. In a special day for children going back to school "Backpacks and Lunch Boxes" were blessed. A dedication was held for the new keyboard and church sign, which were memorials from the Rev. Palmer and Helen Swenson family. "Sing Until Sunset," an outdoor music festival, will be held Sept. 9. The Sunday morning church service that day also will be held outdoors.

OXFORD FBC: Vacation Bible School was held in the evenings, Jul 9-13, with approximately 75 children in attendance. This is a community-wide program, with an open invitation to all children, pre-school - 6th grade. The material used for VBS was titled "Avalanche Ranch" and with the assistance of local ropers, many of the children learned to rope. The VBS closed with a program on Friday evening. Our summer Sunday School program is titled "Living Inside Out Heroes," with our teens assisting the teacher as they work with the pre-school through 6th grade kids.
